Day Spa News: Girls' Getaway

Journalist Jennifer Mellace files this special report with the Fredrick Maryland News-Post:

Listen up ladies. Women of all ages — single, married, divorced, widowed, mothers, daughters and sisters — are hitting the road.

Data from a new survey released by the American Automobile Association and Aspire Innovative Learning shows that 24 percent of American women have taken a girlfriend getaway with family and friends in the past three years, and 39 percent of American women plan on taking one in the next three years.

Marybeth Bond, an award-winning author and editor of nine travel books, including 50 Best Girlfriend Getaways in North America, says women in the United States took 32 million trips in 2006, making them a driving force in the travel industry. She also states that current estimates show women will spend some $125 billion on travel in the next year.
